

A whole evening looking down to this wonderful planet named Earth.

Music out of the amazing sound of the marimba and with floating lines of a flute above - that's the setting to show this marvellous pictures of planet earth, seen from the International Space Station as it normally only can be seen by astronauts.

With music from Debussy, Chopin, Satie and Grieg.

- ❖ Live music with two musicians - flute & marimba
- ❖ Live switch to ISS cameras (International Space Station)
- ❖ Concert under the cupola of a planetarium or outdoor with the pictures taken by NASA and ESA.
- ❖ Words of the palaeo-geneticist Svante Pääbo
- ❖ Indoor for planetaria, conferences etc.
- ❖ Outdoor for events und festivals
- ❖ Projections viable with screen or just with white walls.
- ❖ Projector and laptop then required to show the pictures.
- ❖ Microphones required for larger spaces.
- ❖ Duration 90 minutes

Take a seat - enjoy and dream

Flute - Roswitha Meyer

Marimba - Jannik Becker

Setting of images & fulldome projections - Roswitha Meyer, Simon Plate (director URANIA-Planetarium Potsdam)

Conception in general - Roswitha Meyer

*"That's where life is.... that's where all the good stuff is."
Astronaut Loren Acton*

STARDUST SINFONIE

Contact: Roswitha Meyer

+ 49 (0) 160 - 221 7740

roswitha@stardust-sinfonie.de

www.stardust-sinfonie.de

Member IPS International Planetarium Society Inc.

01/03/2018

Image CC-Lizenz ESO, ESA, NASA, Unsplash

